E&E Foods is part of a fully integrated breadth of companies ready to execute your exact needs. We partner with the best fishermen and have 14 strategically located processing facilities throughout Alaska. We take pride in what we do, because it is who we are. E&E Foods is the largest seafood company you probably have never heard of. Our footprint is large, but we keep our ships small, so we can steer to meet your needs.

E&E Foods works hard to upcycle the whole fish, so no part is wasted. Our 49th Star line of products, features only finfish out of Alaska. We utilize more than just the fillet and portions; by scraping the frames, we can turn the product into delicious breakfast sausage, meatballs, burgers, and more. If you can think of it, we can do it. These forms of product are healthier than their beef and pork counterparts making them the true winner of the shelf.

E&E Foods doesn't only make products from Alaska, but from anywhere the water is blue. Our partnerships across the globe go back to the beginning. We frequently visit and ensure that our sister plants and processors take the same meticulous approach as we do here.

E&E Foods has a line of meal ready products ready for the dinner table. From full meal kits to Smoked Lox and every bite in between. We have the capabilities to deliver fully cooked, heat and serve meals, air fryer meals, and any other meal solutions you may need.

E&E Foods grew up being a private label packer, which is why you don't necessarily see our brands in your store. We have been packing private labels for longer than it takes plastic to bio-degrade. Which is why E&E Foods has switched to only fully recyclable packaging. Helping to save the Earth and our Oceans one meal at a time.

E&E Foods is primed and ready to pack your private label. We've been working hard and silently making moves. Which if you really think about it, makes E&E Foods the ideal company to pack your Private Brand Label.
